Airport Support in Tokyo

Haneda Airport (HND) & Narita Airport (NRT)

Turkish Airlines also operates airport sales/service desks at Tokyo's major international airports:

Haneda Airport (Tokyo International Airport) – airline counters open daily for check-in and travel day assistance. (www.airofficesguides.com)

Narita International Airport (NRT) – longer-haul flights often depart from here, and service counters assist on departure/arrival. (WhereAirlinesFly)

Airport staff can help with:

- Flight day check-in & boarding passes
- Baggage drop & excess baggage queries
- Flight status & departure gate information
- Last-minute itinerary changes (where permitted)

For airport service desk inquiries, calling the local Turkish Airlines customer support is often the best first step as official direct airport desk numbers vary by terminal and flight schedules. (www.airofficesguides.com)

Tips for Travelers in Tokyo

- Call ahead before going: Office is typically open on weekdays only and closed on weekends/public holidays. (airlinesofficedesk.com)
 - Airport counters are often more immediately helpful on your departure day if you need check-in, baggage help, or flight status. (www.airofficesguides.com)
 - Use online tools: Manage bookings, check flight status, or do self-service check-in via the official website or mobile app if you can't reach the office in person. (www.airlinesheadoffice.com)

If you want, I can provide directions to the office from Tokyo train stations or airport terminal counter locations for Turkish Airlines at Haneda and Narita — just tell me which one you need!
